That some Bowery concerns who advertise to "manufacture their own goods" WE KNOW have purchased quantities of REFUSE STOCK during the past few days, which WE WOULD NOT PERMIT UNDER OUR ROOF, merely to hobble along in our footsteps and feebly imitate our GREAT SACRIFICE SALE.

SAID TO HAVE STOLEN A DRESS SUIT.

A Young Woman from John H. Starin's Office Held on a Charge of Larceny.

Miss Elsie Wild, who seemed bright and well educated and was fairly well dressed, was a prisoner at the Jefferson Market Police Court this morning on a charge of grand larceny. Over her dress she wore a rubber cloak and she carried a canvas satchel in her hand. She took her arrest coolly and declined to say anything either for or against herself, only making the request that her name be not printed, as "her relatives would be disgraced" if it was.

She occupied a furnished room at 654 Eighth avenue, and supported herself as a bookkeeper in the stock department of John H. Starin's Transportation Company's office. Julius Shilling, a lodger in the same house, charged that on Dec. 20 he missed a dress suit and a quantity of underclothing from his room. On searching Miss Wild's room, one of the underwears was found in her wardrobe and another pair in a bureau.

She was taken with taking the goods by Detective Evans and she pleaded guilty to pawn-tickets for the dress suit. She denied that she stole the property.

She showed the following letter:

Mr. A. DeWitt, President.
My Dear Sir: The nearer, Miss Wild, I have employed as a bookkeeper for stock-room and to make herself useful whenever she can. I am assured by her many friends here that she is a strictly reliable and competent. Truly yours,
JOHN H. STARIN.

She declined to enter into any statement, but said she had done considerable literary work. Justice Patterson held her for trial in $1,000 bail.

Mr. John H. Starin said to a World reporter that Miss or Mrs. Wild was recently employed as bookkeeper at the office of the Starin Silk Fabric Company, Fultonville, N. Y.

She was recommended by an employment agency and it was reported that she was the widow of a highly respectable New York physician and the daughter of James Wild, a large silk manufacturer of Birmingham, England.

She got tired of the silk factory in about three weeks and went to stop at the Grand Union Hotel, in this city.

On Dec. 6 she wrote to Mr. Starin, making valuable suggestions as to improved methods of silk manufacture. She then said she had obtained a lucrative situation in Englewood, N. J.

A NEW UNIFORM FOR THE SEVENTH.

Col. Leland Introduces Something that Interests the Members, at Mazetti's.

The members of the Seventh Regiment Veteran Association, who are busy in getting up the new armed reserve corps, met last evening at Mazetti's and put the body on a working basis. Leonard F. Beckwith made a complimentary chairman and viewed the prospects of the corps through the rose-colored glasses. Col. Leland, who was the head of a committee on a new uniform presented his report in the form of an oblique lesson. He suggested that the uniform should be made of a material that was both durable and comfortable, and that it should be made in a style that was both practical and fashionable.

He then presented a sample of a uniform that he had made for himself, and which he had worn for some time. It was made of a material that was both durable and comfortable, and it was made in a style that was both practical and fashionable.

The uniform was well received by the members, and it was decided that it should be made for the corps. The members then adjourned until next evening.

MURDERER GREENWALD'S CHANCES.

His Lawyer Expects to Have the Default Opened—No Plot Discovers.

John Greenwald, the burglar who was convicted of the murder of Lyman S. Weeks, of DeKalb avenue, Brooklyn, on the night of March 15, has abandoned all hope of either a commutation of sentence or a new trial. The conviction was affirmed yesterday by the Court of Appeals.

District Attorney Ridgway says that Lawyer Kinsey, Greenwald's counsel, showed the greatest disrespect for him and for the Court when he failed to appear to argue the appeal; but despite that, he does not wish to take advantage of a default and send the prisoner to the gallows. He has not asked for the appointment of a day for execution, being willing to give the defendant every opportunity.

In his own defense Lawyer Kinsey says that the District Attorney played a "snap game." That he gave notice of an argument, but ignored the customary courtesy of a meeting to settle a day for the hearing.

A story was circulated last night to the effect that evidence was found in Greenwald's cell, in the Jefferson Market Police Court, which would tend to prove his innocence. From his remarks it was judged that the District Attorney was to be the victim, and the time, when the men met in Court.

Keeper Shevin of the Jail says there is no foundation for the story. Whatever Alvin Greenwald's cell was searched it was done as a matter of course, and not on account of any suspicion.

It was also stated that the District Attorney was to take place in April, but Mrs. Robinson's testimony in part with that given by Mrs. Russell. Bailson will be taken to the House to see if the arrested woman can identify him.

Mrs. Russell's Alleged Assault Arrested.

(SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.)

MARLBORO, Mass., Dec. 21.—A young man named Henry Baisson was arrested by Detective Hayer in Northboro this morning, upon suspicion of being Mrs. Russell's assailant. Baisson is a disolute young fellow, and has been in numerous scrapes. For the past year he has worked as a booter for different parties. The last six weeks he has been doing nothing but keeping up a revolving state of debt, including hip-pocket liquor, and other small wares. He was arrested on the 19th inst. in part with that given by Mrs. Russell. Bailson will be taken to the House to see if the arrested woman can identify him.

Another Trial for Mrs. Robinson.

(SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.)

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—Lawyers D. F. Crane and J. R. Goodrich, counsel for Mrs. Sarah J. Robinson, the alleged Somerville poisoner, met Attorney General Waterman at the latter's office yesterday, and the Attorney-General at that time elected to try Mrs. Robinson upon the indictment charging her with poisoning her husband, in July, 1885. The government wishes the trial upon the indictment to take place in April, but Mrs. Robinson's attorneys wish the trial to be had at the earliest possible date, and to that end will have a consultation with Chief Justice Morton, of the Supreme Court.

INNOCENT-LOOKING, BUT DESPERATE.

A Man Suspected of Murder Held for Trial on a Charge of Robbery.

An innocent-looking youth of nineteen years, who said he was Daniel Smyth, but whose real name is Tinsman, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court this morning for robbery.

On the morning of Dec. 19 he followed M. J. Healy into the hallway of 39 Third avenue, caught him by the throat, pushed him to the floor and stole a gold watch and chain.

Healy held on to the robber's hat, and with it called upon Inspector Byrnes. The Inspector gave the hat to Detective-Sergeants McCarthy and Sheridan and told them to get the man.

This old hat was made a study. The card of an east-side liquor saloon was found inside and this man was arrested.

Last spring this innocent-looking young man was implicated in the murder of a man at Twenty-third street. He fled to New Jersey, and while in that State served a term of three months for smashing a plate-glass window.

While in prison his companions Biglan and Hayes, were tried for murder, and are now serving terms of ten years. Both these men insisted that Tinsman did the shooting.

Tinsman has also been locked up for picking pockets. Once he was arrested for stabbing a man named Quinlan, who shot him through the hand. He and Quinlan were imprisoned in the Tombs for three months on counter charges, when each withdrew his complaint.

This morning Tinsman was held for robbing Healy.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Another Name Added to the List of Victims of the Aqueduct.

Another name was added to the already too long list of victims of the Aqueduct shaft last night.

Between midnight and 1 A. M. David Cronin, who was nineteen years of age and employed as a laborer, was caught between a car loaded with muck and the wall of shaft 15, at One Hundred and Seventy-eighth street and Harlem River. He was crushed to death.

His body was removed to his home near by and the Coroner notified "was the stereotypical ending of the police report of this case as it has been of many another.

Colored Men Who Oppose Mr. Lamar.

(SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.)

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 21.—The National League of Colored Men, at a meeting held in the Charles Street Church, adopted the following resolutions on the confirmation of Secretary Lamar as a judge of the Supreme Court of the United States:

Whereas, it is the opinion of the National League that a man, who, by his public utterances and his conduct both in public and in private life, has shown himself to be prejudiced against the equal rights of more than seven millions of American citizens because of their color, and in spite of their loyalty to the Union, and who, many years after the war, refused to vote that the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution are valid and binding, ought to hold the high office of Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States; therefore,

Resolved, That L. Q. C. Lamar ought not to have been appointed Justice of the said court, and the National League, in protest against the appointment of Lamar to the said office, and in order to prevent his confirmation;

This resolution has been forwarded to Senators Hoar and Dawes.

LIVINGS, Neb., Dec. 20.—Gov. Thayer to-day sent the following letter to Messrs. Tiedlock and Manderson, the Nebraska members of the United States Senate:

Dear Sirs: As a citizen of the United States and as a Republican, I respectfully but most earnestly protest against the confirmation of L. Q. C. Lamar as a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. He was a

BYRNES GETS THE FULL PENALTY.

Sent to Prison for Twenty Years for Killing James Whelan.

Joseph Byrnes, who was convicted of man-slaughter in the first degree on Monday morning, for the killing of Thomas Whelan, was brought up for sentence in Part II. of the Court of General Sessions this morning.

His counsel moved for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence. Judge Cowing denied the motion, and said that his opinion of the guilt of the defendant was based upon the evidence of Byrnes himself, and he had no doubt that the jury were also influenced to their verdict by the same evidence.

He had once sentenced the prisoner to seven years and six months' imprisonment for burglary in the first degree. Byrnes had also served another term of five months at the penitentiary for petit larceny. He was a man of no clenchy other than was afforded by the Commutation act, and he was given the maximum punishment, twenty years' imprisonment.

WAS HE CHARLES E. BURCH?

The Body of a Man Found in a New England Boat-Box at Newburg.

(SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.)

Newburg, Dec. 21.—This morning, workmen in opening the New England Railroad float-box that arrived here from Jersey City at noon yesterday, found the body of a man therein who had evidently been dead several days.

From appearance, it is thought he had been walking over the hatchway when it gave way with him.

He was a book agent, and had numerous letters and papers addressed to Charles E. Burch, 628 Wiloughby avenue, Brooklyn. His sample-books and order-sheets were found near him. His last order for "Red-path's History of the World" was taken on Dec. 16 at Staten Island.

He was well dressed in a check suit and dark overcoat. Some money was in his pocket as well as a gold watch which had stopped at exactly 12 o'clock. He was apparently a man of fifty years of age. His front teeth were all filled with gold. On his coat he wore a Grand Army button.

The Thief Knew What He Was About.

Camille Guerin, an importer of French leather, locked the door of his office last Saturday, and, taking a satchel full of samples, started out to call on his city customers. When he returned to his place of business he found the door open and $200 worth of stock gone. The thief must have been familiar with the surroundings, as he unlocked the door with a key of his own and removed the goods without the knowledge of the other tenants in the building. Mr. Guerin offers a reward of $50 for the recovery of the goods.
